Podcast Contest - 1st selection round: winners

English

Sonja Agata Bišćan (Croatian/Polish), Zeyneb Kasmi (Dutch/Moroccan)

Working title: "The Water Series"

Theme: Climate

A podcast about the different dimensions of water: a (scarce) resource, a human right, a weapon of war... as well as existing and future solutions. Co-hosted by a human rights lawyer and a data journalist and analyst.

French

Romane Frachon (French)

Working title: "Frontières au féminin"

Theme: Migration

This podcast will tell the stories of migrant women and gender minorities across Europe through testimonials, statistics and other research insights. Hosted by a grand-daughters of immigrants.

German

Marie Zinkann (German), Maximilian Henning (German), Alexandra Ketterer (German)

Working title: "Testing grounds: Biometrics made in Europe"

Theme: Inequality and Discrimination

A podcast about the EU's national biometrics databases in countries that are non-member states and less economically-privileged. Do these databases support democratic governance? Do they further discrimination and prejudice regarding migration to Europe? The hosts will speak to experts, activists and citizens from the affected countries.

Italian

Arianna Poletti (Italian)

Working title: "Dalla finestra"

Theme: Inequality and Discrimination

A podcast centered around the Parisian neighbourhood of Nanterre, and its collection of post-war memories as seen from a postcolonial perspective. The podcast will take you through history: with the transition from a migrant to becoming a citizen, all the way to the "second generation" today.

Polish

Michał Matus (Polish)

Working title: "Nurt Równoległy"

Theme: Digital Tech

This podcast portrays the "Parallel Stream" in Central Europe, an ecosystem of culture, media, ideologies growing parallel to mainstream thanks to the digital revolution. The podcast will offer a collage of voices that reject the mainstream, and those who analyse these perspectives.

Spanish

Aurora Isabel Martínez Sanz (Spanish), Marta Villarte Ros (Spanish)

Working title: "Sueños de agua y sal"

Theme: Migration

This podcast will offer a unique space of discussion, sharing information and gathering the personal stories of five migrants who struggle to reach an unknown land without forgetting their own. Each episode will be accompanied by a visual component.
